This is not wind but facts which we are prepared to demonstrate. We are selling the goods and propose to lead in the race if low prices cut any figure.

Groceries.

Full stock. Our teas are away ahead of anything offered for the money.

OUR MOTTO:--Ready Pay, Small Profits.

Thanking you for past favors, I remain
Yours,

J. C. HOLDEN.

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN IS NOW OPEN.

There is a General Skirmish all along the lines. The Great Battle between Free Trade and Protection will commence October 1st, and will rage with great fury from Maine to California and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, until November 8th.

It will be a bloodless contest. A few heads may be bruised; a few eyes blackened and a few noses enlarged, but no one will be killed outright.

The two great political parties are about equally divided. The Populists and the Protectionists will get in their little work, and the result no one can foresee.

One side will certainly go down Molasses Creek while all the rest will take a trip up Salt River.

In Spite of Politics, the Cholera and Strikes,

THE GREAT BEE HIVE BAZAAR,

502, 504, 506 and 508 Huron Ave., Port Huron, Mich.,

Will go on the same as ever selling an endless variety of goods at both Free Trade and Protection Prices, way down within the reach of everyone, be he Democrat, Republican, Populist or Protectionist.

All are invited to come and examine our Fall Stock of Goods and take a memorandum of our prices. We have an immense stock of

Crockery, Glassware, Vase Lamps, Hanging and Table Lamps,
Beautiful Banquet Lamps.

We are carrying more Tinware than ever. We have added largely to our silverware—Beautiful Pieces.

THE BEE HIVE BAZAAR is the emporium for School Books and Stationery.

We have Hosiery and Handkerchiefs to make you dizzy. Window Shades on Spring Rollers selling from 25 cents upwards. Our Curtain Poles are elegant. We can furnish you anything in the line of House Furnishing Goods at greatly reduced rates.

Nearly everything we have in our immense store is from 10 to 25 per cent lower than ever.

Our Stock of HOLIDAY GOODS is greater than ever. We have new novelties in every line.

It would require the whole of this paper to give the thousands of articles to be found on our tables and shelves.

Do not get excited over Politics or Cholera, but keep right on coming to the BEE HIVE BAZAAR and make your purchases and save money as heretofore. You will be treated handsomely by the proprietors and waited on by our good looking clerks.

Come from the City; Come from the Country; Come from the Thumb; Come from the State and Come, Come, Come from Canada or ANY PART OF THE EARTH TO

BEE HIVE BAZAAR.

IT WAS A HUMMER!

COLGROVE'S CLEAR, CONCISE, AND LOGICAL TALK WELL RECEIVED.

Central Hall was filled to its capacity Monday evening by an enthusiastic crowd who followed the speaker to the very close of his discussion.

The speech throughout was clear, and logical and entirely devoid of personal abuse of any sort. The tenor of Mr. Colgrove's argument went to prove that in national affairs as well as those which pertain to the family it is a grand policy that looks after, protects, and cares for our own people first; that the true policy for our government to pursue is that policy which best serves the interests of our own nation leaving each of the other nations to follow their own plan in their own way so long as they do not interfere with our best interests.

The speaker showing beyond controversy that ours is a grand nation in every sense of the word; that we, as a people have large amounts of timber, coal, iron, copper, and nearly all of the materials grown in a temperate climate and that we also have a people who are so intelligent, so skilled, and so progressive that we can work up these materials into lumber and all its products; into all of the various manufactures that civilized man can make from wood and iron; and that the inventive genius of our people is so keen, so wonderful, that they have invented, perfected, and established machinery to manufacture all of these materials into all of the articles for the home, the farm, and the shop, and the country at large that our people can possibly need or use.

The speaker then gave this proposition: If we have the skill, the machinery, the men and the materials to make all of these things just as cheaply as they can be made without robbing the workmen who make them why should we leave our own iron in the mines, our copper in the ground, and the products of the field on the farm—leave all of these here at home and go to other countries and to other peoples to get them?

The speaker also showed that it is the policy of the Republican party to admit to this country, entirely free of duty such articles as tea, coffee, spices, cloves, sugar, etc., etc., for the reason that we do not produce them here in sufficient quantities to supply our people; but that when we have sufficient of an article right here at home it would be the height of folly to go abroad to buy it.

And again he conclusively showed that if we went to a foreign country to purchase an article that we can make here at home then we certainly help the people of that country to the detriment of our own, for the reason that our money goes to that country and stays there; the workman of that country gets employment to make the article and our own men at home who could have made just as good an article must be thrown out of the employment; that the workman of the foreign nation has all his interests there; that those people pay none of our taxes; build none of our school houses or churches, and do not do anything to build up and maintain our local, state, or national institutions, and for this reason it would not be fair and square dealing with our own workmen and the workman of that country to allow the trader and traffickers of foreign nations to dump their goods on our shores and thus deprive our own people of the employment necessary to make them; to deprive our own farmers, miners and others of a market for their products that go into these goods—that it would not be right and honest to our own to allow these to come in duty free—and that it is just and right, honest and fair to say to these foreign manufacturers and dealers in those articles that we can produce right here at home "We shall protect our own; we will care for ourselves first, and you afterwards; we shall purchase at home at fair rates; we will keep our money here and employ our own people first and will consider you later."

Mr. Colgrove further showed that notwithstanding the fact that the Democratic party in convention assembled had declared in their platform that the protective tariff system of the republican party "is unconstitutional," yet such statesmen as Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, Adams and Monroe who took part in framing the constitution and some of whom were the greatest constitutional statesmen—that any nation has ever produced—these men advocated it, and passed protective tariff laws, and that the second bill ever enacted by Congress and signed by Washington was a protective tariff measure, and further, that this and all tariff measures ever enacted followed by prosperity, while every repeal of such laws had been followed by depression and a loss to the nation.

These and many other kindred topics were treated in such a fair and masterful manner, that those who were interested listeners declare that it was one of the best meetings of the campaign.

At the close of the meeting a Republican Club of 65 members was formed which has since been increased to one hundred and twenty-five, and is still increasing.
